Letter from the Baronage

reetings Unto Delftwood,

As the holidays are upon us, we hope all your travels will be safe ones. With our Yule event coming up, we hope all will join us in the enjoyment of the festivities.

Please feel free to contact us with any award recommendations you have, at either the Baronial or Kingdom level, as we see a lot, but cannot see everything.

Seasons Greetings to all!

Edward and Anastasie

Letter from the Chronicler

Greetings!

This month's Out of the Box section features a great cartoon from the Delftwood Wailer, October AS XXII (1987).

We also welcome back another installment of the Dear Abbey Column.

Thank you to everyone who has sent in articles and photos. Keep them coming!

In Service,
Desiderata Drake

Newcomers Classes

All Newcomers classes are held on Thursdays from 7:00PM - 8:00PM at our Arts & Science Class location (see page 9). All Newcomers classes are free to attend, and no special garb (costumes) is required. Please email the Chatelaine (Desiderata Drake: chatelaine@delftwood.org) and let her know you are coming, so we have enough class handouts.

ATTEND AT LEAST 5 CLASSES, AND YOUR FIRST EVENT IS FREE!!

SCA 105: Business Meeting

Thursday, December 1st

There are 19 Officers that help ensure that our local Barony of Delftwood operates safely and smoothly. Come meet the Officers and learn about their different positions.

SCA 106: First Event Preparation

Thursday, December 8th

What do I need for my first event? What can I expect at my first event? What do I wear? This class will cover everything you need to know before attending your first Event.

SCA 107: What Are They Doing?

Thursday, December 15th

If it they did it in the Middle Ages, chances are that someone in the SCA is re-creating it. Come see some of the different Arts and Sciences that people in our Barony are involved in, including sewing, cooking, illumination, calligraphy, black smithing, glass working, leather working, arrow making, weaving and more!

Delftwood's Deadly Carnival

Saturday, February 11, 2012

The Barony of Delftwood is pleased to present Delftwood's Deadly Carnival! The theme for the event is a pre-lenten carnival festival. There will be multiple fencing tournaments, a fashion show/costume contest and dancing with live music to enjoy. There will be a feast presented by Sir Murdoch Bayne. The event will be held on February 11, 2012. The site opens at 9:00 am and closes at 9:00 pm. The site is damp. No pets allowed, service animals are permitted. There are stairs inside to get to the hall, but arrangements can be made for handicapped entrance with notice at the gate.

There will be a church service held at 6:00 pm in the main church. Please be courteous to those attending the service who may be wandering through.

Greetings of the day dear friends, from l'Abbey du Cervidae! Life in the Current Middle Ages can be uncertain and confusing. We here at the convent have spent long hours in deep contemplation and meditation upon some of the most plaguing issues of our time, and have received revelations that we should share our good knowledge with the general populace for their edification. To that end we shall strive to elucidate our inspired answers and advice here in this good publication. In service -- Les Soeurs de l'Abbey du Cervidae

Dear Abbey

Les Soeurs de l'Abbey du Cervidae

To the wise and dedicated Sisters of the Abbey du Cervidae, I send greetings:

My husband Dyse is the town tinker and is very clever with his hands when it comes to repairing items. Our son Will has been gifted with a level of prodigious ingenuity however, and creates the most fabulous machines the operation of which is simple while the workings remain a mystery to me. And yet one particular device seems to be the target of a most unusual set of antagonists, and I cannot fathom the reason. You see, in an effort to aide me in my daily household upkeep, Will has contrived to build an engine and connecting tube that allow me to clean virtually every surface in our home by sucking up whatever detritus lies upon it, and deposits it in a bin elsewhere. This engine being quite noisesome at times, he has placed the body of it outside the house, while the tube extends inside. It worked wonderfully for a few days, then stopped. When my son and husband deconstructed the instrument they found an unfortunate rodent had somehow become wedged in the internal workings. Having cleared the carcass the machine worked fine for a few days more, then stopped again. This time a sparrow had tried building a nest inside it and perished there; then a rabbit chewed through part of the container thereby negating the suction; then a squirrel filled it with nuts. Dyse and Will devised a creature-proof cage around the engine and yet again it stopped working, this time some viney plant had grown through it. Finally last night a large limb from a tree beside our house fell on the cage, destroying it and demolishing the machine entirely. While Will reasoned he would simply build another and this time keep it inside the house, I bethought myself that this was a truly strange series of accidents and perhaps there was more to the happenings than simple 'bad luck', yet I cannot reason it out myself. Can you offer any aid or advice?

Sincerely,

Will Dyse's mother

My dear lady -

How fortunate you are to have such industrious and clever menfolk about you, and so dedicated to easing your daily chores! After careful contemplation of the information you have given us, it thus saddens us greatly to have only this advice to offer - your son must simply give up pursuit of this particular creation. The explanation for your unfortunate situation is simple, and yet the cure for it would involve continued and increasingly strenuous efforts on the part of your husband and son to protect it, perhaps from the very elements themselves. You see, based on the escalating nature of attacks upon the device, they would seem to be absolute proof that nature does indeed abhor a vacuum.

Good luck!

Les Soeurs
