Letter from the Baronage

reetings Unto the Populace,

We would like to thank all who helped with the Shoot in the Wyldewoods event and hope everyone had a good time. We were very pleased to have raised almost $100 for the Delftwood Beautification Committee.

Looking forward, we will be attending the Coronation of Khalek and Branwyn, we hope to see many of you there.

Yule is just around the corner and I'm sure the cooks and autocrat could use some help with decorations, parking patrol or any number of other things, please seek them out and offer to lighten the load.

We would like to thank all the outgoing Baronial officers for their service; Lord Andreas, Baroness Jennet and Lord Corbin. Vivat!, Vivat!, Vivat! We would also like to welcome the incoming officers; Amalie, Lord Finn and Lord Marcus.

Yours In Service to the Dream,
Edward and Anastasie

Letter from the Chronicler

Greetings Delftwood!

The Full Tilt takes a month off, and lots things happened! Pennsic, Weddings, Pennsic Weddings even! Congrats to Corbin & Maggie, as well as Fergus & Helene, who tied the knot, jumped the broom, got hitched, etc. in the month of August.

Thank you to Gyles de Blair for taking the time to enter July's Dragon Dreams contest! He had the best (and only) guess as to what the Dragon was Dreaming: "Since the dragon seems rather thin, I imagine it is dreaming about stupid and clumsy knights wandering into it's lair, only to be made into a hearty meal!"

Thank you to everyone who has sent in articles and photos. Keep them coming!

In Service,
Desiderata Drake

Past Time

(Words by Megge Gormshuileach
Based on The Beaches of Lukannon, by Rudyard Kipling)

We met our mates at the dawning in the dark and dewy cold.
We packed our totes and rucksacks with all that they could hold.

The miles twixt friends and family passed by and moved along.
We'd spend some time together -- twelve thousand people strong.

We each took up our stations: by streams in forest gloom;
On open fields in quadrants; on hills like rolling dunes.
Gathered thru the deep night 'round pits of dancing flame --
Singing songs and telling stories before the morning came.

We met comrades in the morning with shields and spears and swords;
In groups and ranks and legions to form the lines once more.
And o'er the field of battle as far as voice could reach,
The chanting of the war cries sang forth from all and each.

The craftings of our winters shared 'neath pavilions tall;
The lessons of the ages freely giv'n to one and all.
On platforms and grass rounds, we danced them smooth and worn!
Then back to camp for the evening -- the Home where we belong!

We met with mates for the mourning of lost and scattered friends.
Each year there's more to honor, yet more to honor them.
For every voice that's silenced, our own will sing their fame

Yet still we sing in gladness with friends that still remain.

Then down, came down the castles to pack, and store, and go.
New rounds of songs and stories to tell the folks back home.
Leaving hills, fields and woodlands with mem'ries in full store --
Another year before us 'til we return once more.

A Shoot in the Wildwood (Sept 1-2, 2012)

Delftwood Baronial Court Report

Being the Report of the Court of Their Excellencies, Edward Harbinger and Anastasie de Lamoure, Ninth Baron and Baroness of Delftwood, held at A Shoote in the Wildwood in Their Barony of Delftwood on the 1st and 2nd days of September A.S. 47. Mistress Aheydis von K rckhingen reporting herald, assisted by Her Excellency Baroness Olivia d'Anjou.

September the first:

Their Excellencies welcomed the youth present at the event, who assured Their Excellencies that they had enjoyed the day's events. Their Excellencies gifted them with pots of most wonderous paste, which seemed like the dough from which bread is made, but bore colors as the flowers of the field. One young gentle, moved by love of our Barony announced most vigorously that his favorite was blue.

Their Excellencies called before them any for whom this was their first vist to the Knowne World. Numerous gentles joined Their Excellencies and affirmed that they too had enjoyed the events of the day. Their Excellencies bid them return and encouraged them to ask of the populace should they have wonderings about our lands, or needs during their travels here.

Their Excellencies called upon Their Thrown Weapons Champion, Lord Vilj lmr E var arson, and thanked him for his faithful service to themselves and to the protection of the barony. His service having come to a close, Vilj lmr, was divested of the regalia of his post.

Their Excellencies spoke of the great contest held this day among those who throw the axe and the knife. Having witnessed his skill, Their Excellencies proclaimed Lord R d lfr Eir ksson to be the new Thrown Weapons Champion of the Barony of Delftwood. Lord Ralph was invested with his rightful regalia and was presented a scroll by the hand of Isadora Rogan.

Their Excellencies spoke again to the great skill they had witnessed upon the Thrown Weapons field, and proclaimed Baron Aquila d'Athos to be the victor of the tournament. Scroll by Isadora Rogan.

Their Excellencies told of another great contest held this day among the baronial archery champions of AEthelmarc. The champions put their prowess to the test against all manner of dangers, including savage beasts from the South Seas. Having bested all opponents, Iain Monlach was proclaimed the Seven Pearls Archery Champion. Scroll by Isadora Rogan.

Their Excellencies welcomed Lord Dragul Maksimov Vodnikof of Skraeling Althing in the Kingdom of Ealdormere before them and expressed their gratitude for his industry in making the site tokens for the day. They expressed their delight and pleasure, and that of the populace, with the pewter rings he had generously crafted for the event.

Ichabod Lobster was called forth, but was not to be found, as he was taken ill and proclaimed a most lcky of Lobsters. Lord Ralph appeared in his place and accepted on his behalf a scroll commemorating Ichabod's induction into the Order of the Windmill. Scroll text, illumination and calligraphy by the hand of Baroness Clarice Roan.

There being no further business, court was adjourned.

September the second:

Their Excellencies once again called forth the youth present in the hall. their Excellencies thanked them for protecting the baronial lands from all manner of beasts visible only to the eyes of youth, and charged them with the task of transforming the natures of the beasts through tender care and affection.

His Excellency then spoke to the youth of the tradition in the barony of presenting an ancient arrow to the youngest archer of the day. His Excellency read the tale, and described to all the meaning of the colors of the arrow. Unto Alex Wulfstan, youngest archer of the day, did His Excellency presented the arrow, made by the hand of Thyri Oddsdottir and bestowed by Lord Edward the Grey of Greyledge. Young Alex was charged with the care of the arrow for one full year, whereupon he was to return to these lands, and pass forward the arrow to the next youngest archer.

Their business with the youth having concluded, the youths were invited to withdraw to the company of Lady Sultana, keeper of the chest of playful treasures, that each youth might choose a toy from the baronial larder.

Their Excellencies then spoke of the archery contest this day and proclaimed Lord Michael Gladewyne as the newest Archery Champion of the Barony of Delftwood. Their Excellencies invested Lord Michael with the regalia of his post and bid him take his place upon the dais. Scroll by Isadora Rogan.

Having witnessed great skill upon the archery field, Their Excellencies proclaimed Seamus Rogan as the overall victor of the archery contest. Her Excellency presented to him a sumptuous and bejewelled zibellino, crafted by the hand of Aevianna Nordengel of the Barony of Skraeling Althing in the Kingdom of Ealdormere. Scroll by Isadora Rogan.

Their Excellencies called before them Dragos Pelikanos, co-event steward of the day, that he might recognize and thank his staff. Dragos thanked firstly Her Excellency as co-steward of the day. He thanked also the many marshals who ensured the safety of the contestants upon the ranges. he thanked Baroness Jennet for her assistance with the cleanup, and Lord Michael and Aurelio for their assistance with the castle. Dragos thanked Lady Desiderata and Lady Sultana and Amalie for their service to the youth. Dragos thanked Don Fergus and Lady Helene for their generous stewardship of the stone soup circle. Lastly, Dragos thanked all those who attended for making the event a great success.

Their Excellencies spoke of the lottery that had been open to the populace throughout the event, the proceeds of which were to be divided equally between the winner by chance and the baronial beautification fund. Baroness Olivia extracted a single ticket from among the many purchased and announced Aleidis Lanen as the winner.

There being no further business before Their Excellencies, this their court was closed.

Delftwood Yule

Saturday December 1st, 2012

The theme of the day will be an Alsatian Yule. This area changed allegiances several times during the middle ages, making the culture a wonderful mix of German, Swiss, Dutch and... September Business Meeting Minutes

Respectfully submitted by Amalie Reinhardt

Meeting is opened at 7:05 pm by His Excellency Yngvar.

OFFICER REPORTS

Baron & Baroness: Baron Edward & Baroness Anastasie said that we had a wonderful event last weekend (Wildwood) with more targets than ever before and that the night throw went well. They also reported that a good Pennsic was had (with no casualties).

Pursuivant: Heraldry rocks! Alheydis says more people are getting more heraldry and that there has been several new submissions. If you don't have a banner with your heraldry on it, now is the time to start! She also mentions that Yule is coming up, which screams indoor banners. If you need help with heraldry, contact Alheydis. She will help make it happen!

Chronicler: Desi said she will work on the A&S and September issues will be this weekend. She said that neither issue had a lot of submissions, nor does she have photos submitted from Wildwood or the ARISE demo. The dragon dream contest only had 1 submission. Given voting was quite easy, Gyles has won.

Web Minister: Andreas says summer time has been slow, as usual, for the webminister. Profile photos will be given to new webminister. Amalie is the new webminister, with her Clarice as deputy.

Arts & Sciences: Lijsbet is taking sign-ups for those who wish to teach A&S classes starting in November. AETHelmeArc AAcademy is happening on November 10 in Rhydderich Hael. Please contact Looking for people who want to teach. Contact Odriana or Ysabeau if you are interested.

Upcoming A&S classes:

9/13: 14th-15th c. Applique (Caryl)

[Donations will be accepted to offset cost for appliqué kits.]

9/20: Newcomer's Night & Dancing

9/27: Medieval Sotlties (Lijsbet)

10/4: Business Meeting

10/11: Illumination 101 (Helene)

10/18: Medieval Oil Lamps (Bedwyr, from Myrkfaelinn)

Also, if there is a class you would like to take, please let Lijsbet know so she can try to arrange something for you. Desi also requests that teachers send any class handouts to her for newsletter material.

Knight Marshal: Marcus says that the fighters have been practicing outside. He is attempting to find out if the inside site is available starting next week. Please watch the listserv & Facebook page for information. Also, if you have any heavy fighting gear, please bring to practice on September 19 as gear will be inventoried.

--- Later in the meeting, Marcus heard from Friedrich. Fight practice and fencing will be at the indoor site starting September 12.

Fencing Marshal: Helena thanks her Deputies, Baron Edward and Baroness Anastasie, for helping in the past few months to keep fencing happening. A thank you also goes out to Dragos, who is also a marshal now. Fencing practice is also on Wednesday nights and will be going inside when the heavy fighters go inside. The fencers will work on having fencing classes as there are many new fencers. If there is something you want to learn, please let Helena know. There will be an inventory of fencing gear at an A&S night ... soon.

Thrown Weapons: Baroness Anastasie claims that the Barony recently held an event which involved throwing. People enjoyed throwing in dark (safely). Thrown weapons is happening at same time and place as archery on Sundays. Currently Lanen and Ralff are MITs for thrown weapons. Also, Ralff is the new thrown weapons champion.

Minister of Lists: Failenn would like to step down in February. If you are interested in becoming the Barony's next MOL (whether you currently are warranted or not), please let her know. A letter of intent needs to be submitted to Failenn, their Excellencies, and the Seneschal. The monthly heavy weapons tournament was last night. Sir Olaf won.

Archery: Michael says that archery is happening and that there is lots of loaner gear. There was an event over the weekend and there were no complaints. Michael says that he could use more MITs as the marshals were spread quite thin. Please come out and have fun! And, Michael has given his receipts to Cyneric.

Chancellor Minor: Sultana's report was received by Yngvar. Sultana said that Wildwood had several events planned but only 2 happened due to small amounts of children. Baroness Anastasie gave Sultana games to put with the Chancellor Minor supplies.

Chatelaine: Desi said that she has the new brochures. They are fabulous and have Delftwoodians in them! If you'd like some brochures to hand out, ask Desi and she will give you some. Clarice asks that new brochure be sent to the Webminister to be placed on the website. New people have been showing up. Gold key was used for Wildwood and the largest amount of new people was at the event at Court. For this month's newcomers class there will be a guest Chatelaine who will teach about personas. In the future, Desi would like to have a class on heraldry (hint), one on awards in Delftwood & the Kingdom, and one for the Barony (Newcomers are Nice - Care & Feeding of Newcomers) Desi reports that both deputies have been doing awesome when she isn't there and says other people have been helping out as well. Desi is looking for newcomer sponsors for Yule (to pay for the newcomers or offset nonmember surcharge). Solveig suggests giving newcomers a discounted fee (like $5 off). Desi suggests maybe making a punch card for discounts at their first few events; however, Cyneric is not sure if Kingdom will allow that. Newcomer night classes run from 6:30-7:30pm.

Historian: Oeric is on his honeymoon. History is assumed to still be in a box on their porch.

Chamberlain: Jennet says, for the last time, "We have stuff." There is a new person to take care of the Barony's stuff. That person is Finnr! Yngvar and Finnr both thank Jennet for her 13 years of service to the Chamberlain position. Jennet has been looking at storage areas. She found a 5x15' one at U-Haul for $65 ($780 annually), which is right around corner from Finnr's house. Yngvar asks to get this in writing. Jennet says that this space should be able to take kitchen items, gold key, and maybe the list ropes. She also states that shelves will need to be purchased, most likely 4 units. Cyneric might have another place to look for shelves. Alheydis says a closet pole down the legs will help stabilize shelves. Jennet says the heavy stuff should be placed on bottom shelves when storing. Caryl asks if we have fundraising ideas to cover the yearly cost. The answer is currently no. Finn states when he rented from this company, they did month-by-month. If we can find something better in the future, we could then go there instead. There was a vote taken and the populace is content with renting this storage area. Cyneric moves to authorize funds for the storage unit and is seconded by Guillaume. This vote passes. Jennet's goal is to have everything out of her garage by September 23. A vote to release funds for shelving also passes. Jennet does state that we should look for cheaper quotes and free first.

--- NOTE: The next morning, Jennet informed the Barony, via the listserv, that Cyneric dropped off four shelving units. Therefore, there was no cost incurred to the Barony.

Exchequer: After Cyneric lists all income & expenses, he reports the Barony account currently holds $2452.70. About $1500 was just deposited from our recent event, so the amount is truly closer to $3900. Their Incipencies gave Cyneric a check to cover the first month of the storage rental. Jennet has given funds to cover the second month. Perhaps we can have sponsors for future months.

Seneschal: Yngvar turned in his report (early!) for September 1.

EVENTS

ARISE Demo follow-up (pre-Pennsic): Helena reminded everyone that it rained. She thanked all for helping set-up & fight in the rain. And for those who helped tear down in the humidity after the sun came out. ARISE would like for us to help again next year; however, this event will fall on middle Saturday of Pennsic next year. Helena will have more information later on. Guillaume said that many of the volunteers and staff came and talked to us while we were there. ... and the baby goats got named Harold and Maude.

A Shoot in the Wildwoods follow-up (8/31 - 9/3): Baroness Anastasie said that there was a good turnout. Wildwood is planning to buy an on-demand water heater and will be willing to let us use it next year. They will be building a shower (that we will also be able to use).

Yule (12/1) Autocrat: Felicity Location: Sts. Peter & Paul Bingo Hall: Because the Flussmullners are not present, this report will be skipped tonight. However, both the event announcement and the menu have been made.

Seven Deadly Sins/DECTFF: Jennet hands out copy of her bid for the Feast of the Seven Deadly Sins. (Proposed date: 2/2/13 Proposed location: St. Sophia's) She is trying to keep prices at $20 for Adult on-board. The event will be Italian, will have 2 kitchens running (one for Oeric's poison feast and the other for dayboard), and sinning will have to be done in public during the events. There will be fencing, music & dance, and many contests. Because the church now requires rentals to be rented by church members only, Yngvar & Caryl have agreed to do the contract stuffs. There will be no dedicated room for children's activities and will have a table similar to last year. The question, "Anyone think that this is not a great idea?" is posed for the vote. The populace voted to pass this bid.

OTHER BUSINESS

Baron Edward shows us a tire from the cart in the Pennsic storage area. It needs a new wheel, as the bearing went bad. Additionally, Jennet and Edward went through all the "schtuff". He has 2 bags of bolts and nuts, etc., that were brought back for the Delftwood Beautification Team.

Edward also states we were gifted, by someone in the Debatable Lands, a big stand to hold a Saunders mat for archery (last year).

The question arises - Should we buy a Saunders mat? Edward says it is about a $100 cost. Further questions arise: Would it be used only once a year? Could we use it during archery practice? We could store it in a shed at Wildwood as long as we put a lock on the shed. We aren't charged for that space. Alheydis moved to buy lock and the vote is passes.

A vote to purchase a new wheel (~$20) takes place and passes. Edward will purchase the wheel but someone else will need to bring it to Pennsic next year.

A vote for the Saunders mat purchase (~$100) takes place and the vote passes.

A vote for the site fee for Seven Deadlies ($500) takes place and the vote passes.

 It was asked if a Deed of Arms can happen at the Yule site, and it was confirmed by Yngvar that it can, as the site has already been measured out.

 Lijsbet states that the Delftwood Beautification Team raffle made $96. She is always happy to take donations or fabric (white or blue linen, wool, duck, etc.) for making our Barony more beautiful.

The DBT is interested in making new dayshades for the Barony. One would be double-wide for the Baronage and another single-wide for troll. Lijsbet asks if the Barony would pay for this project. The cost would be $75 at Joann's for the fabric (w/coupons) and $20-25 for poles for the single-width one (~$100 total).

Alheydis suggests checking Syracuse Scenery and Stage Lighting to see if they have fabric at a cheaper cost. Helena asks if this project could continue to have funds raised since dayshade season is nearly done.

Jennet suggests waiting until the Barony knows how much is left in the account before we buy anything for the dayshade. Fergus asks if we could bring this back up at either the October or November business meetings when we have the storage situation figured out.

Jennet also says that starting a dayshade in January/February/March means that it might be done in time for dayshade season.

Solveig asks if there are any winter projects that the DBT can do for the winter event. The answer is yes and that can be discussed later.

Cyneric reminds us that we do need to get approval from Kingdom for each raffle we do. (Or, as Yngvar stated, "per thingie".)

Dragos asks if we could put a request into kingdom to do a 50/50 raffle at our Barony meeting every month. Cyneric is requested to ask Kingdom if this is a possibility.

 Desi asked, and it was confirmed, that all money raising contests for Seven Deadlies need Kingdom approval, too.

*Meeting is closed by Yngvar at 8:15pm
Meeting Re-closed by Yngvar at 8:38 PM.*

Lady Helene's Garden

By Lady Helene al-Zarqa'

September 2012: The Mother of Invention

"Detailed accounts sometimes distinguish still further, listing leeks, pot-leeks, poretta (pottage leeks) and vegetables, all of them leeks of one kind or another. There is hardly a single medieval kitchen garden account that does not include leeks." (McLean, p. 203)

When last I wrote, the garden was beset by three disasters: a heat wave, a drought, and pests. The heat has since broken. The pests seem to have moved on, but not before completely destroying the pea plants. The beans survived long enough to form into plants. At the time of writing, it is unknown if the beans have enough energy left to create a crop. I combated the drought with nightly watering, but only one leek germinated, and the chives withered away. This was not a good development for a medieval garden!

Undeterred, I started planting the root ends of leeks and green onions in the garden. This has proved moderately successful, and there is a small bunch of green onions and a few leeks now growing. The parsley, basil, and thyme were joined by lavender, tarragon, rosemary and a small rose bush. Also, some catnip took root in the garden, which I have allowed to grow because it is so delightful to the cats and it is not nearly as invasive as other members of the mint family.

The herbs have plenty of room to grow, and there is still space in the garden for additional plants. I had grand designs of fielding a soup at Wildwood solely from my garden. This did not happen. I did bring some fresh herbs, which were used, so that is a small victory!

As the Rose of Sharon saplings and branches dried, the woven fence turned from what seemed to be a pretty full fence into a rather sad barrier-in-name-only. Since I had a well-established wisteria plant growing right outside the garden, I took the opportunity to train the vines around the stakes to fortify the structure. In medieval England, a living hedge would have been constructed using hawthorne, crabtree, or holly.

"The tps of the stakes were 'eddered' or woven together with long rails of hazel or willow, and the fence was planted during the winter with seedlings of hawthorn, crabtree, and holly, and protected against sheep by brushwood. After about ten years, when the dead fence turned to living hedge, the base became bare, so the hendge was 'laid,' that is, the stems of the original shrubs were half-cut at the base, and bent to an angle of forty-five degrees, some being left uncut and trimmed as posts, at two-to three-foot intervals." (Landsberg, 63)

I used what was available, which in this case is a wisteria plant, though as the seasons turn, perhaps the beginnings of a hedge can be laid.

Now, the only things to do are to weed, water, and wait. We'll see what this month brings, and if there will be a bean harvest.

See you next month!
Helene
